*...and the rising tide
of repression and discrimination*

To commemorate the Declaration of Independence (1776) and the Declaration of the Rights of Man and of the Citizen (1789), Interfaith Communities United for Justice and Peace invites you to join an Interfaith Dialogue on the continuing struggle for human rights in the United States and around the world.

Victims of detention, discrimination, racial profiling and hate crimes against Muslims, Sikhs and other communities will share their first-hand accounts.

Please join us in a critical discussion on the erosion of civil liberties and how people dedicated to peace and justice can stand in solidarity with those whose constitutional rights have been violated and help to turn back the rising tide of repression and discrimination.
